

Based out of Hyderabad, India, Ashish's responsibilities are to streamline Manufacturing Operations for Injectable formulations. His expertise has been around leading teams and organizations towards continuous improvement using levers of People, Process and Technology. His experience of working across different Industries and geographies has developed strong cultural sensitivity, process appreciation and execution skills.

Ashish is a Research Scholar pursuing his Doctorate in Business Administration. His research interests include change management and understanding the challenges of Pharma 4.0 adoption across the supply chain and developing a universal deployment model to address it.