

Ellen has more than 10 years' regional regulatory affairs experience across multiple therapeutic areas in the pharmaceutical industry. An experienced project manager, she has worked on products at various stages of development, from early through to filing, commercialization and post approval.

In her current role, she is responsible for shaping the Asia Pacific regulatory landscape, in collaboration with internal and external stakeholders. Ellen has successfully led various internal scientific training programs (for example, Advanced Therapies, Real World Evidence) for both regional and local regulatory affairs teams by identifying their educational needs and establishing education roadmaps.

Ellen is a registered Pharmacist and graduated from the National University of Singapore, Bachelor of Science (Pharmacy) in 2005.
