

Niki leads the overall strategic, global process development and longer-term initiatives for biologics processes under her responsibility. She started her career in AbbVie/Abbott 10 years ago as a cell culture lead scientist and subsequently led the GTO team in process development and tech transfer activities. Her previous experience as a Research Scientist at the Bioprocessing Technology Institute, involved various aspects of bioprocessing research that resulted in co-authorship of 17 publications.